The Torch: VNSA 2017 State Convention

VNSA 65th Annual State Convention; BuRNout: Together We're Stronger

On Saturday February 11, 2017 VNSA will be hosting the 65th annual State Nursing Student Convention at James Madison University. This year's theme, "BuRNout: Together We're Stronger," will be focused on reducing stress and preventing burnout in the workplace. We encourage all, including VNSA members, and local faculty advisors to attend this event to learn about new ways to overcome stress as well as exercises to prevent burnout as a future nurse.

Definition:

Phenomenon in which the cumulative effects of a stressful work environment gradually overwhelms the defenses of the staff members, forcing them to withdraw psychologically.

Our speakers and multiple breakout sessions will be featuring their presentations with information to help you succeed in this profession. Come learn new ways to handle your stress and what you can do to prevent burnout as a future nurse. Each attendee will receive a bag with additional information and even a surprise stress relief treat. Contact Katie Retan at vnsa1stvp@gmail.com for any questions or concerns.

“In order to grow as a nurse and take care of others we must first take care of ourselves. My advice is to have a supportive working environment and family. Being a nurse is no easy job, but it is the best job.”
